INTRODUCTION

The Clermont Coalition for Activity and Nutrition (Clermont CAN) was formed in 2008 in an effort to address the epidemic of obesity in Clermont County, Ohio. The coalition is composed of a diverse group of representatives who share the common concern about the impact obesity is having on the health of county residents. Representatives from all aspects of health, education, and government, as well as organizations and individuals concerned about the health of county residents, have joined forces to work toward improving nutritional awareness and promoting physical activity in the county. Clermont CAN has had a strategic plan in place since 2010 and this will be the second plan the coalition has implemented. Clermont County Public Health serves as the lead agency for Clermont CAN as part of its mission of striving to improve Clermont County by preventing disease, promoting health, and protecting the environment.

Clermont County is located in southwest Ohio along the Ohio River. The county is comprised of 14 townships with populations ranging from 2,278 to 46,416 with a total population of 197,363. The county is a suburban county, but is also the western-most designated Appalachian County in Ohio. The most densely populated areas of the county are on the western side of the county bordering Hamilton County, which contains the City of Cincinnati. Agricultural and small residential areas are located in the eastern and southern portions of the county. The racial distribution of Clermont County is 96.1% white, 1.4% African American, 1% Asian and 1.5% other. According to the 2013 Clermont County Community Health Assessment, 54% of Clermont County adults report they do not get enough exercise and 63% of Clermont County adults are overweight or obese. Health risks associated with obesity include heart disease, high cholesterol, diabetes, high blood pressure, breathing problems, and other health related problems.

MISSION & VISION

Previous Mission Statement

“Our mission is protect and improve the health of all Clermont County residents by providing opportunities for eating healthier choices, offer information and education on proper nutrition, and promote physical activity in the county.”

Review of the previous mission statement by CAN members, revealed lack of focus on CAN’s collaborative efforts. It was also pointed out that the mission statement was not concise due to the repetition of “providing opportunities for eating healthier choices” and “information and education on proper nutrition”. CAN members wanted to include provision of opportunities for increased physical activity, a quality unique to this coalition. The previous mission statement also failed to mention the efforts CAN has made towards tobacco cessation.

New Mission Statement

“Collaborate between county agencies to protect and improve the health of all Clermont County residents by promoting and providing opportunities for increased physical activity, advocating for nutrition education, and encouraging smoking cessation.”

Previous Vision Statement

“Be Active, Eat Smart”.

Review of the previous vision statement by CAN members, revealed CAN members would like to mention tobacco cessation but like how concise the previous vision statement is.

New Mission Statement

“Be Active, Eat Smart, Be Healthy”.
